

BECOME YOUR NEXT VERSION

YOUR PERSONAL OPERATING SYSTEM

Design the conditions that help you act deliberately more often.

Your Personal Operating System

You do not need to control every part of life. You do need to notice the conditions that help you act well more often.

ENERGY

Which activities, people, and environments reliably give me useful energy?

What repeatedly drains energy without creating enough value?

FOCUS

When and where do I do my clearest work?

Design the conditions

BOUNDARIES

What limit would protect my time, attention, or recovery this month?

SYSTEMS

Which reminder, routine, checklist, or environment change would make the right action easier?

SUPPORT

Who can offer honest support, feedback, or accountability without taking ownership of the work from me?

Write your operating rules

Complete each sentence with a practical rule you can test. Keep the rules flexible enough to survive a real week.

I protect my attention by...

When I feel stuck, I return to...

Before I add a new commitment, I...

I review my progress every...

The first evidence that this system is helping will be...
