THE QUIET AUDIT

Notice what matters.
Reduce the noise. Choose one next action.

The Quiet Audit

A ten-minute practice for separating what matters from what is merely loud.

HOW TO USE THIS

Set a ten-minute timer. Answer quickly and honestly. You are collecting a signal, not writing a perfect explanation.

1. What has taken the most attention from me during the past seven days?

2. Which part of that attention was chosen - and which part was reactive?

Name the signal

3. What matters most in this season of my life, even if nobody else notices?

4. What am I saying yes to that makes that priority harder to protect?

5. What is one thing I can pause, decline, remove, or postpone this week?

YOUR NEXT DELIBERATE ACTION

Write one action that can be completed in 20 minutes or less and supports what you named above.

Review after seven days: Did this action create more clarity, less friction, or useful evidence? Keep what worked. Adjust what did not.
